Return to Campus

• President Bacow and Dean Gay announced that Monday, August 2 is the target date for when all staff and faculty will be authorized to return to campus.

FAS Return to Campus Working Group

• Mission: Develop and communicate FAS-wide guidelines for the return to campus for FAS faculty, researchers and staff that reflect the following four principles:
  - Put health and safety first
  - Protect the academic enterprise, both teaching and research
  - Leverage our breadth and diversity
  - Preserve access and affordability

• Objectives:
  - Gather staff, faculty and researcher perspectives from across FAS in an effort to inform the development of this work
  - Develop a framework that FAS leaders and managers can use to prepare for return to campus
  - Ensure that we successfully support teaching, learning and research
  - Prioritize equity and inclusion as we mindfully develop a plan for faculty, researchers and staff to return to campus
  - Look for opportunities to create community, collaboration and camaraderie for returning faculty, researchers and staff
  - Provide visibility and transparency to the process and the outcomes
The Return to Campus Group is focused on planning as it relates to the following areas:

- Health and Safety
- State and Federal Regulations and Guidelines
- Vaccinations/Testing/Distancing/Masks
- Physical Space
- Flexwork Options
- Harvard’s Flex Guidelines and Related HR Policies
- Dependent Care and Work Coordination
- Travel
- Transportation (Commuting)

The group will focus on the importance of communication, clear and comprehensive policies, and equity in all of these areas.
What Staff Need to Know Now

• Currently, the Harvard-wide Coronavirus Workplace Policies are still in effect. While we know there will be changes going forward, for now, the policies on HARVie are what you should refer to for now – if you have questions.

• There is a review underway of how Harvard’s Flex Guidelines will be updated and revised as we move into the summer and fall. Extra attention is being given to flexibility guidelines (top priority). Other COVID-19 policies currently being reviewed include emergency excused absence pay and dependent well care days.
What Staff Need to Know Now

• We are in a period of transition; return to campus will not be like “flipping a switch”. There are so many dimensions of our lives that tie into our work plans (schedules, transportation, dependent care, schedules, etc.) and everyone’s situation is unique to them.

• Returning to campus will elicit different emotions for each employee after a year-plus of living and working differently. All Harvard employees have access to the Employee Assistance Program (EAP) and its team of clinicians. More information can be found here: https://hr.harvard.edu/employee-assistance-program
Return to Campus Next Steps

• Group members are planning how best to gather input and perspectives from FAS staff around return to campus guidelines.

• An email address will be set up so that FAS staff can pose questions and share concerns. The group will also be developing an evolving FAQ based on staff feedback.

• We will continue to update the FAS Administration and Finance website with Fall Planning updates: https://adminfindean.fas.harvard.edu/return-campus

Gift Policy: Navigating the Current Philanthropic and Engagement Landscape
Agenda

ONE  |  Current Philanthropic and Engagement Landscape
Understanding the realities and complexities of philanthropy today

TWO  |  Harvard L.E.A.D.S.
Identifying the roles and goals of individuals working in this landscape

THREE |  Policy Review
Increasing awareness across relevant members of the internal community
Understanding the realities and complexities of philanthropy and engagement today

Together, we share collective responsibility to manage to University Gift Policy, honor our donors—past, present, and future—and protect Harvard from actively engaging individuals and organizations who might jeopardize the reputation, funding, and/or relationships of our institution.
Identifying the roles and goals of individuals within the dynamic philanthropic and engagement landscape

LEARN

In the context of your work, learn as much as you can about donors/volunteers. Recognize specific triggers for further research. Work with FAS Development to investigate and flag them appropriately.

EVALUATE

Based on what you have learned, evaluate what actions may be appropriate. This may include conducting or requesting further research, engaging a manager, the FAS Development Office, or the University Gift Policy Committee.

ACT

Take the best action based on your reasonable assessment of available information and/or the guidance of others you consulted. This may include recommending the relationship with Harvard be discontinued.

DOCUMENT

Work with FAS Development staff to document any relevant information, discussions, and actions. Use documentation to move away from a culture of discretion and into a culture of diligence.

STEWARD

If an ongoing relationship with the donor or volunteer is maintained, steward them strategically and continue to monitor any potential concerns as the relationship continues.
New Policy:

Engaged and Prospective Donor and Volunteer Review (EPDVR)

University development staff, faculty, and administrators are responsible for knowing and adhering to restrictions on prospective donor cultivation, gift acceptances, and volunteer engagement that may be related to perceived conflicts and restrictions governed by local, state, and federal legislation or Harvard University policy. These restrictions include policies pertaining to the solicitation of gifts from donors while they have a family member applying for admissions, gifts that might be construed as advancing a donor’s business interests rather than the interests of the University, and gifts that would pose substantial risks to the University, whether due to the source or purpose of engagement or funds. The University will decline to pursue or accept donations that are inconsistent with the considerations that are outlined in the Gift Policy Guide.
New Policy:

Gifts From Relatives of Applicants

All those engaged in fundraising on behalf of Harvard University will not solicit gifts, except routine annual fund and reunion gifts or those which follow previous individual giving patterns, from donors and prospective donors whom they know to have a relative or child who has applied to or who is actively considering applying for admissions to Harvard University. If the prospective student applies, no solicitation will take place until a final admissions decision has been made—or until after the conclusion of that year’s admissions cycle (July 1).

Occasionally, an unsolicited gift might be proposed by a donor or prospective donor while a relative is simultaneously considering admissions to Harvard. The individual should be advised that any gifts to the University should not be made, or conversations about potential future gifts should not occur, until after the admissions cycle has concluded, so as not to compromise the integrity of the admissions process.

The same guidelines and principles apply to all members of the Department of Athletics.
Gifts To Self

Covered Individuals are prohibited from making a gift of personal funds, either individually or through a foundation or donor-advised fund, that is restricted to support their work, or that otherwise will be held in a fund or account that they effectively control. While Covered Individuals are not prohibited from making gifts to their department, such gifts must be subject to independent expenditure oversight and may not be used to pay for the Covered Individual’s or any direct report’s compensation or fringe, nor for consumer goods used by the Covered Individual, nor for the Covered Individual’s travel costs or other expenses with a significant personal element. (The term Covered Individual as used in this policy includes all faculty, researchers, and staff of the University, as well as their immediate family members.)

The prohibition in the preceding paragraph may be waived, on a case-by-case basis, with the prior written consent of the department chair, School dean, and Office of the Provost, who may impose additional conditions. Generally, in such a case, however, the gift will not be regarded as tax-deductible and the University will not issue a gift receipt.
